Janine Donnellan is the founder of SOuL Searchers Investigations and Editor of the online Paranormal Magazine. She is also Lead Investigator of the SOuL Searchers Paranormal Investigations Team. Janine has been conducting house clearings and paranormal investigations for over 15 years and established SOuL Searchers Paranormal Investigation Team in 2006. Janine has a certificate of Advanced Achievement in Parapsychology (1998) Australian Academy of Applied Parapsychology and her interest in the occult was developed as a young child through her spiritualist Grandfather. Janine is also an Energetic Healer and Reiki practitioner.

Nic Hume ~ Assistant Editor

Nic is the Co-Founder and Lead Investigator of APPI – Australian Paranormal Phenomenon Investigators. Nic's fascination with the paranormal realm was cemented at the tender age of 14 when she experienced her first full-bodied apparition. Over the years she has had her fair share of unexplainable experiences. Nic has always been curious of why people do what they do, so she studied Psychology at university, and currently works as a Counsellor. She has the ambition of combining this knowledge with her interest in the paranormal to eventually become a Parapsychologist. Nic writes articles for the APPI website, is a regular contributor for Spirit Magazines and has also been published in Doreen Virtue's Saved by an Angel.

Steve Millard ~ Case Manager of SOuL S.P.I

Steve is the Case Manager and an Investigator for SOuL Searchers Paranormal Investigations. Ever since he was a child Steve has had a fascination with all things paranormal. As he got older he had more questions than answers and as science has developed over the years so too has the equipment he uses to assist him in investigating the paranormal. Steve has Clairvoyant and Clairsentient abilities which he is constantly developing through workshops and spiritual development. This does not blind him however to keeping an open mind while investigating.

Jenny Taylor ~ Website Manager

Jenny is the Website Manager as well as Historian/Researcher and Part-time Investigator for SOuL Searchers. Jenny's fascination with the paranormal and occult developed during her childhood and in later years she explored areas such as psychic development, Reiki and other alternative healing methods. Having a background and training based in science (Bachelor of Science, Zoology) she understands the importance of investigating all possible mundane causes (eg. psychological, physical) of any alleged paranormal activity. However, she keeps an open mind to all possibilities and has personally experienced many episodes of claircognizance, clairvoyance and one 'definite' ghost sighting, for all of which there is at present no satisfactory scientific explanation. Jenny has been part of the SOuL Searchers team since its beginning in 2006.

Brother Truth

Brother Truth is the writer and editor of popular alternative news and book review website- The Conspiracy Review (www.theconspiracyreview.com). For the last seven years Brother Truth has researched deep geopolitics and paranormal phenomena, writing numerous articles and book reviews to much acclaim.

Ashley Hall - The Paranormal Guide

Ashley Hall is the website owner, administrator and manager of all The Paranormal Guide's operations. He came up with the name The Paranormal Guide about three years ago when he started work on his book about Haunted locations around Australia. His interest in the paranormal started in his teens while reading the Readers Digest book 'Into the Unknown'. From there he researched UFO's extensively before moving into the field of Ghost and Hauntings research about 3-4 years ago.

Haunted Australian Shipwrecks

Did you know that surrounding Australia there are nearly 8000 registered wrecks, ranging in age from the 1600s to present day? With so many lives lost in traumatic circumstances one wonders how many of these shipwrecks are actually haunted.

We have often heard about mysterious ghost ships that sail the seas, often people have reported spectral images of ships that have sunk and have been reported to still haunt the waters where they had sailed.

The Flying Dutchman is a classic tale which tells of a legendary ghost ship that can never make port, doomed to sail the oceans forever. Sightings in the 19th and 20th centuries reported the ship to be glowing with ghostly light. The sight of this phantom ship is said to be a portent of doom.

Here in Australia we have two reported haunted wrecks out of the thousands of wrecks. Perhaps there are more haunted wrecks out there waiting to be discovered. The thought of encountering a ghost underwater is quite scary and I am sure that many a diver has had a strange encounter but has kept it to him or herself.

The Yongala SS is perhaps one of Australia's best-known ghost ships. The final voyage was SS Yongala's 99th. It started on the 14th of March 1911 under the command of Captain William Knight. The appealing vessel left Melbourne, reached Brisbane on the 20th of March and Mackay on the 23rd. When it left the port at Mackay it was carrying 49 passengers and 73 members of the crew. It was then when the ship was last seen; SS Yongala was reported as missing on the 26th March 1911. Even if the government offered a substantial sum for information leading to the discovery of the ship, nobody knew where it went missing.

The SS Yongala wreck was not discovered until 1947. In the years that followed its disappearance there were stories about a ghost ship moving on the waters between Bowen and Townsville. After World War II the wreck was discovered at approximately 30 meters within the Central section of the Great Barrier Reef Marine Park. The bottom of the ship was ripped and so SS Yongala became an artificial reef, a unique habitat for marine life.

What about shipwrecks? Are they haunted too?

Alkimos a Greek-owned merchant ship was wrecked on the coast north of Perth, Western Australia in 1963. The wreck is a popular diving venue, and is also reputed to be haunted, making it of interest to paranormal investigators.

A variety of events and allegations throughout the vessel's history have given rise to it being regarded as being 'jinxed', cursed or haunted, both during its working life and since it was wrecked. This aspect is the main focus of present-day interest in the ship.

History

The ship was built during World War II by Bethlehem-Fairfield Shipyards in Baltimore as part of the United States' Liberty ship program and was originally scheduled to be named George M. Shriver. It was launched on October 11, 1943. On October 20, the vessel was re-assigned to the Norwegian Shipping & Trade Mission, was re-christened Viggo Hansteen and saw war service for about 18 months, primarily in the Mediterranean and was crewed by mariners of various nationalities. It served as a troopship and transported cargo, in convoys that were sometimes attacked by German aircraft and U-boats.

A murder-suicide took place on board Viggo Hansteen in August 1944, while the ship was at Naples; Canadian radio operator Maude Steane is reported to have been shot by another crew member, who then killed himself.

After the war it was sold to a Greek shipping company and renamed Alkimos, after a word meaning "strong" and a Greek god, Álķimos. As Alķimos, the ship plied the world's oceans for two decades. In March 1963, the vessel was on a voyage from Jakarta to Bunbury when it struck a reef off the Western Australian coast. It was salvaged and towed to Fremantle, the port city for Perth, where it underwent repairs for two months. After settlement of a dispute concerning payment for the repairs, the Alķimos left Fremantle under tow by an ocean-going tug from Hong Kong.

Only a few hours out of port, the tow line gave way and the Alķimos was driven onto the shore. Although the ship remained intact, it could not be floated off at that time, and so it was filled with water to secure it in place and left in the charge of an on-board caretaker. Another tug returned in January 1964 and the ship was refloated, but the planned journey to Manila had hardly begun when the tug was seized at sea by authorities and the Alķimos was left anchored. In May 1964, the vessel broke anchor and was driven onto the Eglinton Rocks near present-day Yanchep. On this occasion it was more severely damaged, and all thought of salvaging it intact was abandoned.

It was later sold by the owners for scrap. However, in 1969, salvage workers were driven off the wreck by a fire. One of the salvage workers also reported hearing ghostly noises. After that time, the partly dismantled remains of the ship sat in several metres of water, visible to visitors, but gradually disintegrating.

Is the Alķimos cursed and haunted?

There are many theories and speculations about the curse of the Alķimos. There have been speculations about a murder suicide on the ship, however there are also claims that two welders were sealed up between the inner and outer hull whilst the ship was being constructed. The constant changing of the ship's name has created speculation that she was unlucky from the date of her launch.

The ship seemed to have acquired a reputation as being haunted whilst she was actively trading as Alķimos after the war. A series of ghost sightings were apparently made by the crew.

Regular references have been made on radio and television shows regarding the superstitions. Jack Wong Sue, who co-authored a book on the subject, has appeared on ABC television describing the various hauntings.

From a paranormal investigator's point of view most of the reported phenomena could easily be classified as a residual haunting.

Paranormal incidents include:

- apparitions of a small dog in the engine room during the ship's service;
- phenomena reported by salvage workers occupying the wreck, including: footsteps heard on ladders and following workers around the vessel at night
- cooking smells and noises emanating from the galley
- tools were reported to be moved by unseen hands
- an apparition of a human figure in rubber boots and oilskins (nicknamed "Harry"), has been seen.

HARRY HOUDINI MASTER MAGICIAN & PSYCHIC INVESTIGATOR By Janine Donnellan

As a young child I was fascinated with the movie about Harry Houdini, I am not one for magician's tricks but his escapes from unescapable situations had me perplexed.

Born Erik Weisz in Budapest March 24, 1874 – October 31, 1926; Harry emigrated to America on July 3, 1878 and became a famous stunt performer, noted for his sensational escape acts.

Houdini had a special affinity with his mother and after his mother's death in 1907, the great escape artist would spend the rest of his life in an unending search for a real medium who could give him the contact he so desperately desired with his beloved mother, and provide proof of life after death. But his knowledge of the techniques of deception resulted in him exposing all mediums he encountered as fraudulent, and he never found the proof he so passionately wished for.

In the 1920s Houdini turned his focus toward debunking self-proclaimed psychics and mediums. He was a member of a Scientific American committee that offered a cash prize to any medium who could successfully demonstrate supernatural abilities. None were able to do so, and the prize was never collected.

Houdini wrote about his debunking exploits in his book, A Magician Among the Spirits, co-authored with C. M. Eddy, Jr. (uncredited). Unfortunately, these activities cost Houdini the friendship of Sir Arthur Conan Doyle. Doyle, a firm believer in Spiritualism during his later years, refused to believe any of Houdini's revelations.

In spite of his anti-spiritualist campaign, Harry Houdini never relinquished hope that someday, evidence would be provided as proof of life in the hereafter. He announced his own intention to return after his own death, and establish communication from beyond the grave. Harry and his wife, Bess, even agreed upon a code they would use as proof that any such communication really did take place with whichever of them preceded the other into that unknown territory, the code was "Rosabelle believe". Before his death, Houdini stated that should it be possible to contact the living from the other side, he would do so.

Every October 31, from 1927 up to the present day, a séance has been conducted with hopes of contacting the spirit of Harry Houdini. This has been a tradition since the anniversary of his death when he died from peritonitis at the age of 52. So far, the great Houdini has not made his presence known.

Mysteries of Melbourne & Sydney's Luna Park By Ashley Hall

The “Joker Ghost” of Luna Park, St Kilda VIC

Luna Park in St Kilda is the first of the four Luna Parks built across Australia; opened in 1912 it only took a few decades before stories of a resident ghost began to circulate.

Although Luna Park in Sydney is well known for its Ghost Train fire tragedy that took place in 1979 and killed 6 children and one adult, Luna Park Melbourne is very well known for its resident 'joker' ghost.

A quick search through various books and media stories about Luna Park in Melbourne reveals the tale of a strange figure who would suddenly appear in front of oncoming cars on the Scenic Railway Rollercoaster. This mischievous character would also suddenly appear inside the cages on the ferris wheel startling all who witnessed it.

As far as can be ascertained the joker ghost started his appearances somewhere in the 1940's and even then this rough estimate is very tenuous. We only know of this date as forums from the 1990's put the sightings down to 'about 50 years ago'.

Who could this joker ghost be?

Some of the witnesses accused the park management of being behind the trick as a publicity stunt but the park denied all knowledge. Making a person suddenly appear and disappear on a ride would be quite a feat considering the lofty heights the ferris wheel can tackle.

If we take a look at the parks history maybe that will reveal to us a few clues as to the Joker Ghost's identity.

European Settlement began in the area known today as St Kilda in 1840. At the time the terrain was boggy swampland and in its earliest years was used as a rubbish dump. Several years later the swamp was filled in and in 1884 became crown land reserved for public recreational use.

In 1906 Mr Erle Sigismond Salambo was granted the lease and on 2nd November that same year opened Dreamland, St Kilda's first amusement park. Dreamland did not do as well as Salambo had expected and even with its many amusements, slot machines, novelty band and very elaborate towers, minarets and pagodas was closed down within a year of opening operations. Dreamland was soon demolished and the land went unused for the next five years.

In 1911 J.D. Williams Amusement Company secured a ten year lease on the land for use as a 'Steeplechase Park' similar to the one on Coney Island in the US. Besides the artificial horse ride that surrounded the boundaries the park incorporated many attractions including picture theatres, a roller skating rink and would also feature motor shows. Unfortunately the company had to abandon the artificial horse track as it was deemed unsafe and after losing this main attraction a new plan was needed: Luna Park Ltd. was formed.

Luna Park in St Kilda was the first of the Australian Luna Parks and was opened December 13 1912 when 22,000 people passed through the mouth of 'Mr Moon' and life 'Just for Fun' had begun. The park had many attractions including the Scenic Rail Rollercoaster with a track almost a mile in length (the oldest continually operating roller coaster in the world) that bordered the parks boundaries.

Since its opening night the park has run almost continually but like most amusement parks this amusement park is not without its accidents resulting in death.

December 16, 1913 Snake Charmer Henry Deline was taken to the Alfred Hospital in a comatose state after being bitten on the throat by one of his Tiger Snakes during a performance. Deline being a veteran of snakebites (being bitten twice before in the previous two weeks) tried telling the doctors how he had cured himself the previous times. Unfortunately the doctors could not understand much of what he had to say.

Mr Clarence Hurst was killed on the Scenic Railway Rollercoaster in January 1926 after he turned around to speak to someone behind him. As he was half hanging out of the car his head was struck by one of the coasters supports. The man next to him grabbed hold of his legs to stop him from falling out but Hurst was already dead.

The Big Dipper was another of the parks rollercoasters and in March of 1935 it too saw a fatality. Mr M Dyer, 21, fell out of the car at the highest point of the ride and fell 74 feet to his death. He died of multiple broken bones, internal injuries and a severed leg.

The following year Harry Maltby died when he fell out of one trolley car to be struck by another.

1940 saw the most curious of all the parks deaths. Mrs Elizabeth Patrick was walking out of the park and along the street when she suddenly complained that she was going to collapse. Her final words to her husband Earnest Patrick were 'Get me out quick, I'm fainting.' before promptly hitting the pavement.

At the time Elizabeth Patrick had fainted a Luna Park superintendent was collecting ticket money from the cashiers aided by three park attendants. One of the attendants, Keith Eagle, left the group in order to tell three youths to move on and leave the park after they had made a disturbance. The leader of the three youths Edward Paulin told Eagle that they were doing no wrong and why should they leave. Eagle pulled out his firearm (carried when the park was full and he was escorting money transportation) and fired a shot. Edward Paulin threw two bottles at Eagle who fired another shot.

This second shot hit a person witnessing the events in the hand. After firing this second shot Eagle handed his firearm to another of the park attendants, Alexander Porter, who shot himself in the leg when putting it into his pocket.

Three shots were fired that night and three people were hit. The first shot had in fact hit and killed Elizabeth Patrick. Her husband only learning of this when a doctor at the hospital had told him his wife had been shot!

The result of the following trial was that death was due to misadventure and the only thing Eagle was guilty of was carelessness (just short of criminal negligence). The park changed its method of escorting money shortly after.

It would seem anything can happen at Luna Park.

As for the Joker Ghost, well, it is said by some that his appearances stopped within the year while others claim that he is still around. The park does not generally make mention of their celebrity apparition except at around halloween time. Perhaps they continue his legend as a publicity stunt after all?

Luna Park Sydney

Luna Park is a family friendly amusement park located on Sydney Harbour Foreshore. The concept and style of the amusement park was modelled after the original Coney Island Luna Park in New York. Sydney's is the third 'Luna Park' to be built in Australia after Luna Park Melbourne (1912) and Luna Park Glenelg (1930).

Luna Park Sydney (opened as Luna Park Milsons Point) opened with immediate success on the 4th October, 1935. Many of the rides and attractions had been relocated from the Glenelg site which went into liquidation a year earlier after trouble with the council and local residents.

The site had previously been occupied by the construction yards and sheds used for the building of the Sydney Harbour Bridge. Once the bridge had been completed the sheds were demolished and applications for tenders were received to develop the site. It was the people responsible for Luna Park Glenelg that won the contract and the park was constructed over a three month period.

Originally Luna Park only opened for nine months of the year, closing for the winter months; in 1972 it was opened all year round. During the 1950's the park started to see a decline in attendance due to the increasing availability of other forms of entertainment in the form of television. In 1969 the park was sold and the new owners sought to develop the site into a multi storey trade centre. The application for development was overturned and the park stayed open for another decade until tragedy hit and the park was closed.

On June 9 1979 a fire broke out on the Ghost Train at about 10:15pm. The ride was at capacity as the smoke billowed out from the doors and through the roof. The fire completely consumed the ride.

At 11:30pm, about one hour after the fire had started it was brought under control and seven bodies were recovered: John Godson, his two children, Damien (6) and Craig (4), and College students Jonathon Billings, Richard Carroll, Michael Johnson, and Seamus Rahilly. Their deaths were caused by either damage suffered from direct burns or carbon monoxide poisoning.

The bodies were not recovered from the train cars but rather the victims had left them in order to find a quicker exit. The cause of the fire was never conclusively discovered but it was stated that even if the victims had stayed in the cars they would not have fared any better as the cars were seen to exit the ride on fire.

There have been many theories about the cause of the fire from the mundane; electric faults, cigarettes igniting props to the more sinister; arson committed by Sydney underworld figure Abe Saffron or a ritual sacrifice to the ancient Ammonite god 'Moloch'.

It is the last theory that has gotten most of the spotlight in recent years. The ritual sacrifice of children to the god would take place in a giant oven depicted as a giant bull. The children would be placed inside the 'oven' or in the figures arms to burn to death.

The theory was started after a picture was dug up, possibly the last ever taken of one of the young boys killed in the fire, shown standing next to a figure dressed in a strange horned bull like mask complete with horns.

To add more interest to the theory a boy by the name of Marshall Said (16) stated that a car with two young boys was still let into the ride, the last car to do so, even after he had signalled to the operator that there was a fire. The last issue of the Sydney's 'The Sun' Newspaper featured a story on the front page titled "Occult Link to Luna Park/Ghost Train fire"

Luna Park closed after the tragedy but reopened in the eighties. It underwent several more closures and reopening's until 2004 when it reopened and remains so till this day.

Is it haunted?

Unlike Melbourne's Luna Park which had its famous 'Joker Ghost' the hauntings at the park are relatively low key. They are generally of a more personal nature with people experiencing strange whispers in their ear in the vicinity of the 'Big Top' built on the location of the old Ghost Train.

There is not a lot more to say except by Jennifer Poidevin who is the mother of the two boys who along with her husband, died in the fire.

"We asked Damien and Craig what ride they'd like to go on again, they chose the Ghost Train. Little did I know... For some reason, suddenly I felt like an ice-cream. I asked the others if they wanted one, but they said no. I asked them to wait for me, but when I turned around they were gone.

I don't know why they didn't wait for me, as we'd been on every ride together that night. It still haunts me to this day. Something spiritual took over. Divine intervention? For some reason, I was not meant to die that night."

The Paranormal Guide is the brainchild of Ashley Hall. Ashley is also the website owner, administrator and manager of all TPG operations.

He came up with the name The Paranormal Guide about three years ago when he started work on his book about Haunted locations around Australia.

His interest in the paranormal started in his teens while reading the Readers Digest book 'Into the Unknown'. From there he researched UFO's extensively before moving into the field of Ghost and Hauntings research about 3-4 years ago.

In the podcasts Ashley's role is as the lead host and tries to keep things running smoothly although this is not always straightforward and possible with a team so passionate about paranormal subjects. He is a skeptic.

What Ash says:

"I have had an interest in the paranormal for a very long time but found it frustrating that sources of information were either hard to navigate, hard to understand (too much jarg on), hard to digest and some are just plain outright boring. I am hoping we can provide a site and facebook page where those problems I faced are hopefully eliminated.

This is not a site to replace other sites on the net but rather a good place to start with generalised information presented in a straightforward and easy to navigate way.

I also love to make movies so soon the website and facebook page shall be filled with all manner of mini docos about the various topics we shall be covering.

As for my personal goals within the paranormal field well I guess I am just like most of the other people out there. Getting hard and complete answers to the mysteries would be great but from here I am more enjoying the journey. I tend to believe that should those answers present themselves we will just end up with more questions in the long run."

Australiana Pioneer Village

By Nic Hume

Australiana Pioneer Village is located in Rose St, Wilberforce. At the entrance stands Rose Cottage which dates back to 1811. The village is the brainchild of Bill McLachlan, who in the late 1960s went on a collection rampage to save many of the Hawkesbury's colonial buildings from either demolition or pure neglect. Bill had them transported to create a small town that symbolised what it was like to live in pioneering Australia. The village consists of a Church, Bank, Post Office, Police Station, Shearing Shed, Blacksmiths, Barbers, Brothel, Lolly Shop and one of Australia's oldest barns to name a few.

When APPI – Australian Paranormal Phenomenon Investigators set out to investigate the village we spent a lot of time talking to locals and volunteers at the village as well as researching the history of the actual buildings and the land. Our plan for the night was to use ourselves as triggers by dressing as pioneering men and women, preachers, teachers...eek and prostitutes! To see what energy we could raise and ultimately what evidence of paranormal activity we could capture.

We conducted our first group vigil in the Church. The townsfolk took their places in the pews and the preacher cited bible verses. During this vigil two ladies who volunteer at the village on a regular basis had the feeling of uneasiness, sickness in the stomach and one felt she was being stroked on the head. One of the ladies stated "I have spent over ten years, day and night, in the church and never felt this before". We had cameras stationed in the Church during this time and kept them running after we vacated and headed to the next vigil. Upon perusal of video footage there was unexplained music that came up on the audio. It lasted for approximately 5 seconds, faded then returned. It sounded like old church music.

Next we spent some time in the old Marsden Park Public School. The school was named after Samuel Marsden, who was called the flogging parson because of his strict approach to religion. Inside the school you'll find original desks and chairs, a chalk board and artefacts found in the local area. It was built to have the windows up high so the students were not able to be distracted by the outside world.

This vigil began with Miss Stephanie reading to the class. There was one student who was disruptive and was punished and made stand at the front of the room. Miss Nic took over and had the class recite their times tables. All during this vigil we had hand held cameras with IR lights monitoring the vigil. There was one point when I was at the front of the class with my camera pointed at the class and as I panned left to right you notice one of the students become distressed, it so happened that this girl felt a hand clasp around her calf. After calming her down the class played a game of heads down thumbs up. During this game there was a lot of laughter and energy was raised. At one point there were two ladies who claimed their thumbs were pinched, but, those in charge of doing the pinching stated that they did not touch those ladies. It is interesting that these ladies were sitting at the back of the room where shuffling could be heard by most of the participants.

We spent the next part of the night in small group vigils where each team was allocated a cottage and tasks to complete. Many of our participants reported personal experiences that were recorded in their experience books. They were not to discuss what occurred in small group vigil until all the groups had finished all cottages and tasks. It was interesting to see similarities in experiences between groups and individuals in particular cottages. This village is a wonderfully active location.

After our investigation The Friends of The Australiana Pioneer Village Society Inc. decided to conduct Ghost Tours at the village. They start running again in March 2013 on a bi-monthly basis. Cost is $25 per adult with a light supper provided. Even if you can't get to a tour, the village is open pretty much every Sunday and well worth the trip out to Wilberforce. If you are lucky to head out there on a quiet day...or later in the day when many have ventured home...you will find the space to spend time alone in the buildings taking in the history and hopefully connecting with those who watch over this amazing old Australiana village.

SPACE CLEARING CONSULTATION

Sometimes your house or office can feel uncomfortable, and there is no real reason to explain your uneasy feeling. Other times, it's easy: someone has been there that was negative, ill or died. There may be instances when you moved into a space and just felt like someone else was there, or the space just didn't feel right.

Janine Donnellan from Spheres Of Light & SOuL Searchers can conduct a private space clearing in your home or business. Janine will clear negative or stagnant energetic 'imprints' built up over the years from the accumulation of day to day living and from previous occupants, replacing them with Love, Abundance, Prosperity, Good Health & Happiness.

The space clearing consultation takes between 1 – 2 hours and costs $80 plus travelling costs if outside the Sutherland shire.

Taunton Castle

by Steve Millard

Being a born and bred Taunton boy I have had many a trip to Taunton Castle as both a child on school trips and later as an adult when I would take my own family there. I had heard the stories told over the years of the place from the English Civil War to Judge Jeffreys and the Bloody Assizes but had paid very little attention. It was not until recent times when the Most Haunted team paid a visit to the castle and along with medium David Wells had some interesting experiences that re-kindled my interest in the old place.

When the Anglo Saxons founded Taunton on the banks of the River Tone they had a defensive structure in the area but when the Normans came for a visit they built the first stone structured castle. By 1600 the castle had fallen into ruin and it was not rebuilt again until the English Civil War as yet another defensive position. This was probably the most defining point in the castle's history and it's from here that a lot of the paranormal activity relates to.

The Monmouth rebellion of 1685 resulted from Charles II dying and not having a legitimate heir to the throne. The ruling monarchy was therefore passed to Charles II brother who was James II. James Duke of Monmouth who was the illegitimate son of Charles II felt aggrieved and thus the English civil war began when Monmouth tried to regain what he presumed was rightfully his - the throne.

History of course tells us he failed and what followed was the Bloody Assizes.

Judge Jeffreys was appointed by James II to track down rebel soldiers and those that aided them. What followed earned the cruel Jeffreys the title "The Hanging Judge". In the period that followed 200 people were hung, mostly in Taunton and 800 were transported to the West Indies. The Duke of Monmouth was sent to London where he was beheaded, allegedly taken three blows of the axe to complete the task. A local 70 year old woman who gave refuge to 2 rebel soldiers after the battle of Sedgemoor was beheaded as a result of being discovered by the judge.

Judge Jeffreys became so notorious that eventually the people rebelled against him. He had to take shelter in the tower of London where he eventually died of kidney disease. A suitable demise of what some would call a sadistic murderer who enjoyed his work a little bit too much.

This has led to many tales of paranormal activity over the years from ghost sightings of the judge himself as well as phantom battles replaying around the battle of Sedgemoor site.

The Castle itself which is a museum containing many local artefacts was the focus of a Most Haunted show and David Wells was quick to pick up on a very oppressive and negative energy thought to be the hanging judge himself. The episode itself can be viewed at this website: <http://www.veoh.com/watch/v3276303Jj2nexK?h1=Most+Haunted+Taunton+Castle>

Following this episode I was lucky enough to be there with my daughter and witnessed first hand some unexplained knocking in an empty room now housing exhibits.

In September 2012 I was again lucky to be able to visit the castle with Janine Donnellan from our very own SOuL S.P.I and some good friends sharing our trip. While travelling along an upstairs corridor our K2 meter measuring electromagnetic energy suddenly had a maximum reading without any visible source creating it. At the same time Janine felt a firm hand on her behind (and no, it wasn't mine before you ask) followed by a cold temperature change between us that caused the hairs on my arm to prickle.

Reflecting back, it was an interesting experience that we had trouble finding non paranormal explanations for.

Sadly the museum does not run organised ghost tours and since the Most Haunted episode they have tried to discourage further interest in such things.

The picture opposite is the corridor where Janine and I had the experience.

Australian Ghostlore

In the quaint coastal township of Shellharbour NSW, runs the Bloody Mile. A stretch of road between the Minnamurra River and the railway station is where over 13 gruesome murders took place in the early pioneering days. It was said that no right minded traveller would pass that way after night fall as the ghostly moaning noises would be too much for any man to handle.

“Achoo!” “Bless you!” - Superstitions by Nic Hume

In Elizabethan times it was believed that if one was to sneeze with their mouth open it would allow ease of passage for the devil to enter the body without harmful provocation. Hence the saying of ‘bless you’ or ‘god bless you’ would make the sneeze with open mouth a blessed place and avoid possible possession of the devil.

Superstition can be described as Supernatural Causality: the belief that one event will, without physical process, lead to the cause of another.

In the 1st century superstitio or superstitio vana (vain superstition) was used to describe religious cults in the Roman Empire. Early Christianity officially outlawed this. The Greeks and Romans relate superstition to religion by taking the meaning to come from a fear of scorn if god is disobeyed. To take superstition to a level where it consumes normality was said to be a perverse excess of religion.

Customary belief, religion, old wives tales; no matter the origin of a superstition it would be fair to guesstimate that the majority of the human race has obeyed a superstition at least once in their lifetime. Upon researching popular superstitions it was apparent that many were foreboding of bad luck if a particular event took place.

- Avoid walking under ladders – A ladder placed against a wall creates a triangle and to walk through that triangle was believed to be a violation of the Holy Trinity, sacrilege. Egyptians cherished the triangle symbol, to them the triangle represented the trinity of the gods and to pass through one was to desecrate them. During the crucifixion of Christ a ladder was rested against the crucifix, symbolizing wickedness, betrayal and death. In England during the 1600s, criminals were forced to walk under a ladder on their way to the gallows.

- If a black cat crosses your path you will have bad luck – Many cultures agree that black cats are powerful omens. The Ancient Egyptians believed that all cats were a sign of good luck. King Charles I kept a black cat as a pet and when it died it was said that his luck lamented as the very next day he was arrested and charged with high treason. It was during the Middle Ages throughout Europe that cats, especially black cats, became bad luck. Black cats were the companions of witches or even witches in disguise and that for a black cat to cross ones path was said to bring bad luck.

- It's bad luck to open an umbrella indoors – This traces back to Ancient Egypt and the superstitions that surrounded Pharaohs. The sunshades of the day were bulky and difficult to maneuver, much the same as in Victorian times when an umbrella was opened indoors they were clumsy and dangerous either breaking fragile ornaments or even injuring people in its path. The bad luck is said to come from unpleasant words and quarrels that would follow such an event.

- Seven years bad luck if you break a mirror – This arose from the belief that a mirror can take in part of the human soul. In early times when there was a death in a home all the mirrors would be covered or turned to the wall to prevent the soul of the newly deceased becoming trapped in the mirror. Whilst there are numerous superstitions with regards to mirrors the most common is breaking one brings seven years bad luck. To overturn this it is believed that one is to take a piece of the mirror to a cemetery, crush it into a powder and bury it.

- If you spill salt, toss a pinch over your left shoulder to avoid bad luck – Dating back to 3,500BC, the ancient Sumerians wanted to nullify bad luck and began to throw a pinch over their left shoulder. This ritual came forth with the Egyptians, Assyrians and the Greeks. In times gone by salt was considered a prized seasoning for food and was highly valued and that to spill some was considered as a loss of value and worth.

- Don't place hat on a bed - There are many different superstitions regarding hats, from removing them as a sign of respect and where to place them. This stems from the fact that the bed looks like a coffin and hats are placed on the coffin of a soldier as a sign of respect. It is a common belief that to place a hat of a bed bad luck will forebode.

- Knock on wood – To knock on wood is thought to be a protection from bad luck. This comes from the belief that good spirits reside in trees, nature spirits.

These are only the tip of the iceberg when it comes to superstitions. Thousand year old beliefs still carry on today. I'm sure many of you avoid walking on cracks so you don't break your mothers back or struggle to remember if it's an itchy right or left palm brings money. There are those who take these age-old beliefs as gospel and eccentrically avoid harmless things to get by each day and there are those who think its all hogwash. Either way it's interesting to know where superstitions stem from as they are rich in history and help form the make up of what we believe today.

Uncovering the ghosts in Newcastle

by Renata Daniel

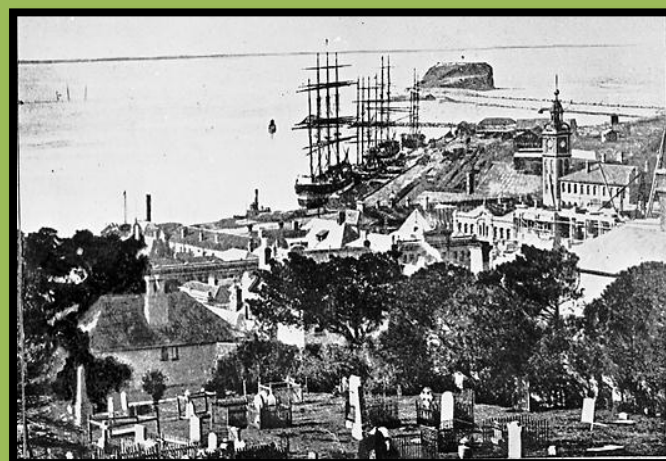

I have spent the last two years investigating and searching for stories and evidence of ghostly activities in Newcastle. From my own personal dalliances with those on the other side of the veil to the masses of stories I am accumulating that people tell me whilst attending one of my tours I am pretty sure that our town is full of them!

Newcastle was originally named King's Town and a settlement started with a small band of convicts and military in 1801 but disbanded only six months later after a near mutiny. It was restarted in 1804 with a larger contingent and a real need to rid the colony in Sydney of those bothersome Irish Catholics that had instigated a rebellion at Vinegar Hill.

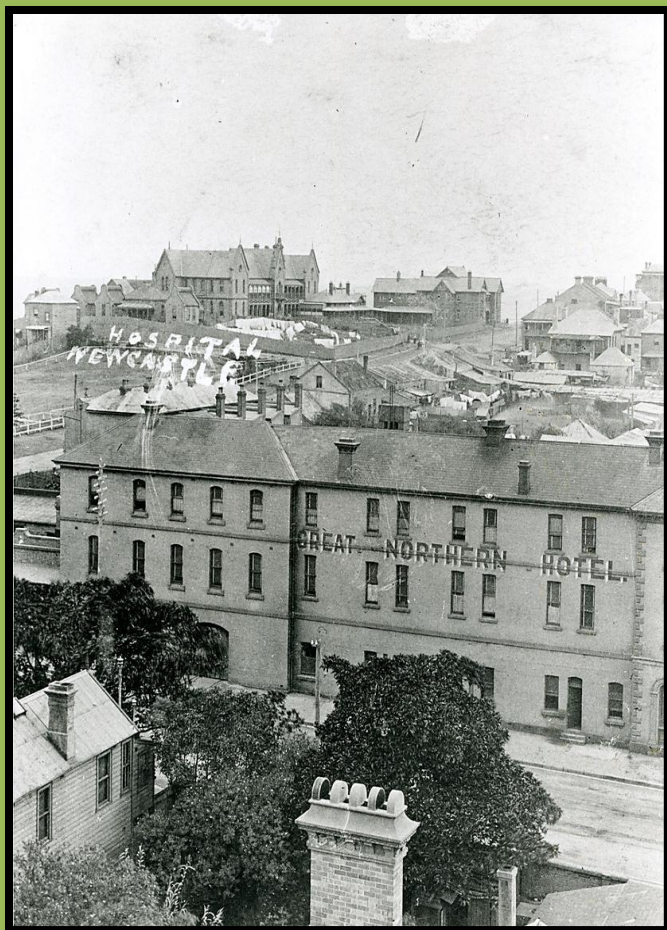

Newcastle's first years were ones of isolation and misery with the cat of nine tails and leg irons keeping the convicts in check and relieving them of any desire to live.

Sentencing to Newcastle meant being taken to Sydney's Siberia, to the Camp, to work in hard labour for a term of at least seven years with drastic food restrictions and malevolent Commandants waiting for any excuse to punish. Sydney seemed like a paradise compared to the living conditions in Newcastle.

Things only improved when the township became a free settlement in the mid 1820's and an influx of free men came to seek their fortunes often bypassing the township to head out to the fertile soils of Maitland, Morpeth and Raymond Terrace.

Newcastle has been left with a brutal and rich history built on blood, sweat and tears and not many people know about it.

Newcastle Ghost Tours does an East End Tour that takes people to the places where those convicts worked, slept, lived and died. It's a 2 ½ hour tour that often drifts into 3 hours as we walk the same streets and stop at active spots where the energies of those first settlers seem to be stuck in time.

Both skeptics and believers will find this tour interesting. We have conducted investigations at many sites along the way and I share our findings. But more often than not it's the reactions and experiences of those on tour that are the most intense.

The stories are enough to get everyone's imaginations working overtime. In the first year it seemed to be mostly local people who joined me on tour, but now I am seeing more people from Sydney and the Central Coast. I am also available to take small groups out on any night of the week – so if you are coming to Newcastle to enjoy the beaches, call me and see another side of our city - the side that Novocastrians have been trying to hide for over 200 years but the side that I find totally fascinating.

Check out our special events!
Hope to see YOU soon,

The different types of Paranormal Investigation Teams

By Janine Donnellan

TV shows such as Ghost Hunters and Most Haunted have definitely brought paranormal investigations out of the closet and into the world of the general public. This type of media exposure has been responsible for creating a whole new scene of paranormal investigators, who may or may not have any prior paranormal training and or experience.

There are many different types of paranormal groups now, some are just cyber groups and others are active groups conducting real investigations. If you run or are in a paranormal team have you ever thought about what type of investigation team you are?

Types of Paranormal Teams:

Research Investigations

These investigations are usually performed by experienced paranormal investigators, who are looking at the investigation from from a scientific/logical perspective. They allocate a considerable amount of their time on analysing and reporting on all evidence collected.

Spiritual investigations

This type of investigation is generally performed by groups of a particular spiritual belief system which can include people from a variety of religious backgrounds utilising the services of clergy or from a plethora of New Age/Pagan practitioners utilising a variety of healing/clearing modalities. The investigation usually involves eliminating whatever might be causing the paranormal activity by conducting a ritual based clearing such as a house blessing. This type of investigation may include some type of exorcism.

Psychic Investigations

These teams often utilize the services of mediums or people with a variety of psychic abilities to tap in and sense any supernatural activity.

The team usually has at least one medium/psychic within the team and they determine what is going on with that particular location. Their sensory abilities may include being clairaudient, clairvoyant, clairsentient or claircognisant, or a combination of these abilities.

Field Parapsychology

Field Parapsychology incorporates aspects of all investigation techniques described above. The goal here is to determine initially if the activity is through some logical interference and then if that aspect is ruled out then they can look at possible paranormal, or some other forms of explainable natural phenomena.

Once the obvious explanation has been eliminated then they would endeavour to establish what kind of paranormal activity is occurring. They would record data (photos, footages, audio records and so on), then try to find a solution to the problem which could include conducting a clearing. This type of investigation team would analyse the data collected and give a report on their findings.

Debunking Teams

Usually carried out by sceptics. This type of paranormal investigation is to debunk all allegations of paranormal activity and to find a rational explanation to all such claims of paranormal activity.

Past Life Regression

By Nic Hume

I was fortunate enough to attend a workshop by Dr Brian Weiss in 2011. If you've not heard of Dr Weiss I recommend you check him out. He would have to be one of the kindest peaceful souls I've ever come across. Very calm and softly spoken he discussed what has become his life's passion – Past Life Regression (PLR). During the workshop we underwent a number of meditations to build up our understanding of the lives we lived before this one. In his book 'Many lives, Many masters' he tells of how astonished and skeptical he was when one of his patients recalled past-life traumas that were the key in her current life's nightmares and anxiety attacks. Dr Weiss became intrigued when his patient began to channel messages in between lives that contained revelations for Dr Weiss and his family that involved his deceased son. In learning all this from his patient he embarked on a journey of research into reincarnation, PLR, future life progression and survival of the human soul after death.

So for one to believe in PLR, surely one would have to believe in reincarnation. Many religions acknowledge that the soul reincarnates many times in order to learn a number of things, resolve issues, purify itself and find its way back to God. Upon death does the soul return home and await the next birth? What came first death or birth? How many lives have I had? Do I get frequent flyers? How could I have been Hannibal in one life and Mother Teresa in the next? This is a pseudoscience that can do one's head in for sure.

Psychiatrist Ian Stevenson conducted over 2,500 case studies in reported reincarnation over a 40 year period. His main line of study was in the reporting of young children who claim to remember a past life. According to Stevenson, these childhood memories of reincarnation occur between the ages of 3 and 7 then fade. During the study Stevenson would investigate and compare the reported memories with people known to the deceased (the child's previous life) and attempt to make a connection. Stevenson found that a vast majority of these cases involved violent and untimely deaths. Remarkably 35% of the subjects had corresponding birthmarks or birth defects that related to the death in the previous life. These ranged from small discolorations to major defects that reflected the nature of death in the child's previous life. Stevenson went on to write twelve books on the subject.

Ever had that feeling like you've been here before? Those who are pro-PLR believe that entering a state of hypnosis or meditation to recover memories of previous incarnations can lead to a better understanding of phobias and the like as well as finding meaning in their current life. PLR is said to be a key to unlocking your oldest memories to help you heal and understand your soul. PLR can also help you recognize why you are drawn to the people you currently have in your life. All of us are drawn to the people with whom we have past karma. This could be a lucky feat and we are drawn to our twin flame over and over or sometimes not so lucky and we are rebounded from one hurtful relationship to another. In a sense is it thought that we have to learn the karmic lesson or are required to pay a karmic debt. PLR is something that can help with understanding why you are in constant struggle and grow from it and move on.

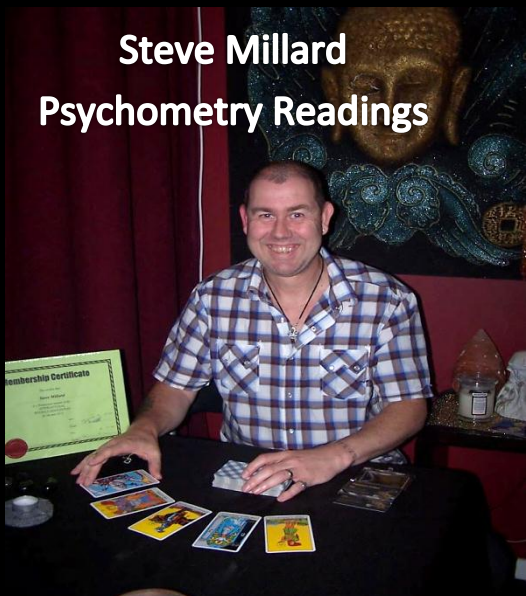

Those who are non-PLR believers agree that such memories are just fantasy and delusion, repressed memories or cryptomnesia. The use of suggestive questioning whilst in a hypnotized state to reveal the identity of events is similar to the method used in recovered memory therapy, this can lead to a misrepresentation of memory and constructed recollections. Researchers have investigated the 'memories' from PLR studies and it was found that such memories hold historical inaccuracies or were vague and hold no true detail that can be traced. Repressed memory is a memory that has been dissociated from awareness or oppressed due to their traumatic nature.

Studies by the American Psychological Association have found that it is not currently possible to distinguish a true repressed memory from a false one without bonafide evidence. Cryptomnesia is the return of a forgotten memory that the subject believes is a new memory. So the subject may have received distinction in their thesis on Joan of Arc but had a bout of cryptomnesia and recalled her life as Joan as a past life memory in amazing detail.

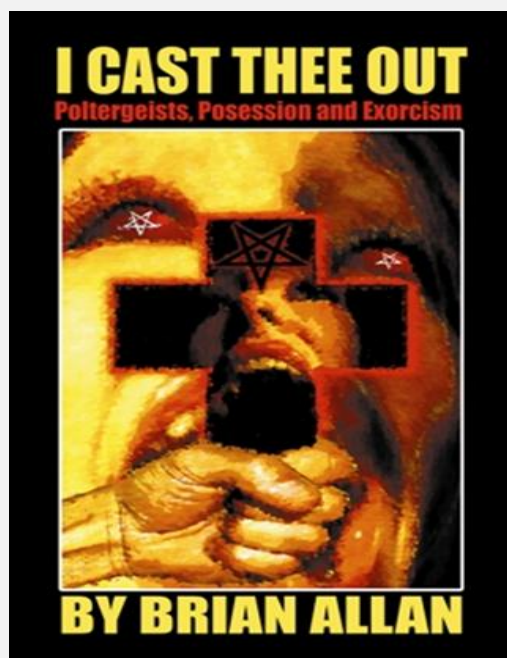

I have completed a few PLR meditations myself with the most detailed one led by Dr Weiss. As with everything, I sit on the fence of belief and disbelief, as there is always good argument for and against. My memories felt real and I could recognize people in my current life in my past lives even though our relationships were somewhat different. The emotion of experiencing PLR first hand is real and raw. Depending on if you are recalling a good life or one full of pain and sorrow it is an amazing experience to say the least. Enter with an open mind.

I Cast Thee Out - by Brian Allan
212 Pages
ISBN-10:1907126155
ISBN-13:978-1907126154

The history of exorcism goes back well over 2000 years and can be attributed first to the polytheistic priests who operated in Babylon (Modern day Iraq). In the opinion of these holy men most forms of mental illness were the direct result of an otherworldly entity invading an unwitting host and could be removed from the victim with the use of specific rituals.

Some of the first instances of exorcism often involved what we would call "sympathetic magic". The priests would make a tablet out of clay and command the invading entity to enter it. When it was concluded that the spirit was now inside the tablet – they would destroy it, thus supposedly destroying the unwanted presence.

I Cast Thee Out by Brian Allan provides a balanced in-depth look into the history of exorcism, citing some very interesting cases from all over the globe. Although not often publicised, many religions have their own form of exorcism and in this book Allan presents an impressive catalogue of research. From the first exorcisms ever performed to the last witch burning in Ireland in 1885 – this text renders most other works on the subject obsolete.

In the second half of the book, Allan concentrates on a specific case in which he himself was involved. He first became aware of this case in 2010 when he received an email from a distraught lady in Mexico complaining about strange phenomena in her home. After some investigation and much correspondence it was decided that the house in which the woman lived was possessed. Allan contacted two mediums and eventually the situation progressed to the point where the only sensible option was to perform a remote exorcism. After a few failed attempts – the mediums and Brian Allan were eventually successful.

The last few pages contain some very engrossing information, including an English translation of the Latin Rituale Romanum which is the text used in traditional Catholic exorcisms. You may remember it being used by Fathers Karras and Merrin in the banned 1973 horror film "The Exorcist".

Author Brian Allan is a paranormal investigator/author from Scotland who has been involved in some of the most interesting cases ever to occur in the British isles. He has written thousands of articles on paranormal /esoteric/Gnostic themes for well over 25 years and has compiled many stimulating books on a range of subjects.

I would strongly recommend this book to anyone interested in the ritual of exorcism, as well as anyone who likes to spook themselves occasionally. I have to admit, I hesitated when it came to turning the light off after reading it!

UFO and Paranormal Research Society

The society was established to provide the public with information relating to the paranormal world of the unexplained, no matter the type of phenomena. The society beckons the public to forward their own accounts of anything that seems bizarre or unusual so as to defy logic! The Society is an active, in the field group dedicated to pioneering the unexplained world.

The Society has now embarked on a project to deliver this material as recreations professionally produced whereby actors are cast into the roles of the characters and the original account from Australians that are investigated by the Society are put to film. This Series is called EERIE ENCOUNTERS and the first DVD, featuring the UFO phenomenon, is now available from the Society. The series will eventually go to air on TVS.

The Society actively engages the public on reports they give so as to lend credibility to the reports they give. Everything from Cryptozoology to ghostly apparitions is covered.

Validate

Validate is an independent investigative body seeking key elements that may provide evidential support to certain paranormal related theories such as hauntings, alleged foreign intervention i.e. UFO phenomena and cryptozoology.

In order to authenticate claims, Validate will endeavour to gather bona fide data without relying on calculations or any conclusions drawn by other groups or organisations. This clean slate approach enables Validate to conduct its own studies without influence. All obtained information (raw data) can therefore be thoroughly scrutinised at Validate's best capacity.

In essence, Validate deals with highly controversial areas that are considered as fringe science. Here, even the most qualified scientists who have invested time and risked their academic careers to pursue phenomena research, find it extremely difficult to understand and draw solid conclusions. Validate acknowledges these difficulties through experience. Although Validate operates on strict guidelines, it appreciates the fact that certain events are beyond our academic textbooks. In other words, Validate will not be dissuaded no matter how extraordinary the claim may be. Validate is also dedicated to assisting and coaching groups within the field with the aim of bringing unity to the paranormal (including UFOlogy) community.

Australian Paranormal Society

The Australian Paranormal Society (A.P.S) - founded and owned by Bill Tabone and Amanda Wright-Tabone, and co-ordinated by Bill, Amanda, Emily Tabone and Will Tabone - run a professional team of paranormal investigators who are located in Melbourne, Australia.

The A.P.S - is a 'not-for-profit' organization - that consists of a professional team of individuals 'with varying skills and a broad range of expertise' who are dedicated to researching and understanding unexplained phenomena worldwide - and we provide a 'free onsite assessment' for residential and commercial customers -Just email us with your enquiries.

The Australian Paranormal Society does not encourage nor will it condone trespassing at any time and it will only investigate a location if proper permission has been granted by the appropriate authorities.

The A.P.S aim is two-fold: to create a team of 'dedicated paranormal researchers' as well as an extensive online resource centre that will cater for varying levels of interest and understanding.

Our mission is to extensively investigate and empirically document all types of 'unexplained phenomena' within Australia, utilizing the most advanced equipment and methodologies.

We approach each reported incident with sensitivity, fully respecting the person's worldview and religious beliefs, while maintaining full confidentiality. Any evidence gathered on location will remain private and confidential and any public disclosure would remain at the full discretion of the client.

An A.P.S. requirement of any investigation is that a full 'debrief' and feed-back session will be scheduled with the client to whom all findings will be made public.

The A.P.S will initially consider various rational explanations for alleged 'paranormal phenomena' and will continue to assist our clients until a satisfactory conclusion about any phenomena is reached.

All investigations proceed with no preconceived assumptions and will remain unbiased by allowing any evidence uncovered to guide the direction of the investigation.

Occupational Health and Safety issues affecting the A.P.S team are critical during any investigation. If for any reason members of the A.P.S feel the investigation should cease for personal or safety reasons, the investigation will be postponed or terminated.

Through their investigations the A.P.S hope to gain a more concise understanding about the nature of unexplained phenomena through extensive data collection, experimentation and empirical documentation

The A.P.S. also offers a specialised team for the clearing of premises/spirit rescue. This team is separate to the investigative team although still part of the A.P.S. This team will only attend when a thorough investigation has taken place. All contact is through our email.

We are open to any questions the public may have and to support other fellow paranormal investigation groups.

Our aim is to also build a more open and united paranormal community.

An evidence analysis service for the public and other P.I. groups is also available.

Colonial Paranormal

Colonial Paranormal is Victorian based and was born out of our interest in the Paranormal, and wanting to know about things that go bump in the night! We got started on investigations in 2009 after going to the Point Cook Homestead. We have so far done investigations at Old Melbourne Gaol, Old Geelong Gaol, Point Cook Homestead and J Ward with other groups and are now trying to strike out on our own. We'd love to find more like-minded people who want to go on private investigations in Melbourne and around Victoria. We're not a tour group, nor are we out to make a profit or stand on the toes of existing groups. We'd just like to do our own thing. We have all our own gear and all we need is people keen to join us on investigations. By creating Colonial Paranormal we'd like to share the costs involved with getting into places. Most places charge a fee to get into, if we can split that with 10 people it's way cheaper than a tour. You can email us at melissa@colonialparanormal.com or visit the website www.colonialparanormal.com or you can find us on Facebook "Colonial Paranormal".

Almost everyone has a ghost story involving psychic phenomena: Sensing a presence in the room, or right next to you; seeing objects move by themselves; hearing voices of deceased loved ones, or rapping, or scratching sounds. Find out what it's all about.

Parapsychology is the study of psychic functioning, and transpersonal psychology is the study of the spiritual dimensions of consciousness.

Materials supplied include case studies from the Australian Journal of Parapsychology (2002, Vol. 2[2]), plus a recommended reading list of 33 items and a dozen colour images.

The tutor: Robb Tilley has been an active member of the Australian Institute of Parapsychological Research Incorporated (AIPR), since 1982, and for the last ten years has been managing editor for the Australian Journal of Parapsychology. Robb was also Vice-President of the Australian Transpersonal Psychology Association for 16 years.

Robb Tilley had his first "out of body" experience in 1964 aged 14 years, followed by experiences of telepathy and precognition, including an encounter with a spiritual being who explained that this spiritual life work is very important.

Robb has successfully cleared haunted houses since 1994 as part of his role as Public Officer for the AIPR.

Your night will commence the Muster point in front of Miss Porter's House directly across the road from McDonalds King street Newcastle West. Young offenders can also find themselves at the LOCK UP for misdemeanours BUT they must be under the supervision of a parent or guardian at all times. Age limitations restrict children under the age of 14 years. Your time in incarceration will finish at 8am Sunday morning when you will be given your Ticket-of-Leave and been shown the front door. Biometric Frequency Infusion Healing is now at Embrace

Have you heard of Biometric Frequency Infusion Technology? This is a system of healing utilizing zero point energy and positive ions which is incorporated into an Iyashi wand infused with a mineral blend and IRC ceramic technology. This instrument has been calibrated to hold thousands of specific beneficial energy patterns providing harmonizing qualities that the body can respond to. Whether you are having problems sleeping or you are feeling fatigued or have joint problems, or any number of other ailments, the Iyashi Wand emits energetic frequencies attuned to help speed the healing process.

Janine Donnellan will be conducting healing sessions at Embrace on Wednesdays. Her healing sessions will be incorporating a combination of Biometric Frequency infusion healing, Chakra Balancing and other energetic healing techniques. The healing sessions are designed to help you balance your body, emotions, mind and Soul.

Janine is an Energetic Healer and teaches a variety of spiritual workshops on Shamanic Journeying, Chakra Balancing and Aura Viewing. Janine is also the founder of Spheres Of Light and SOuL Searchers Paranormal Investigations. Janine is a full member of the International Institute of Complementary Therapists.

AXIS MUNDI

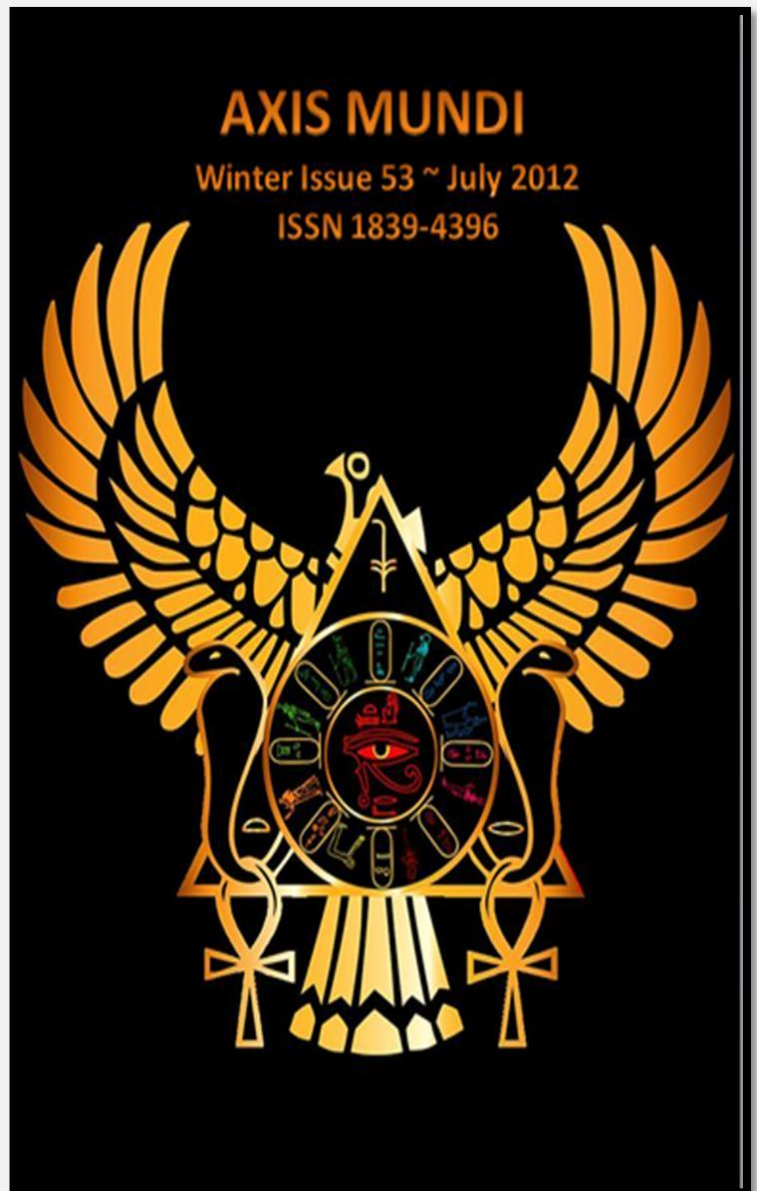

A free online magazine from Spheres Of Light

axismundi.spheresoflight.com.au

Welcome to "Axis Mundi" ISSN 1839-4396

The Axis Mundi is a FREE online magazine, produced on a quarterly basis, which provides topical information to keep you up to date on news and developments in the Australian Pagan community. Subscribers are notified by email each quarter when a new edition is ready. In addition to our usual announcements on upcoming activities and events, the Axis Mundi contains articles and information that correspond to a seasonal theme and highlight the rhythms and cycles of the natural world and our lives. Your suggestions, comments and contributions are strongly encouraged. It is through your active participation that this online magazine will grow and develop into a publication that will empower you on your journey through all realms of possibilities personal, spiritual, and magical.

The Latin term, axis-mundi, literally means the axis of the world. Our logo expresses a shamanic point of connection between sky and earth where the four compass directions meet. At this point travel and correspondence is made between higher and lower realms and is reflected in the concept of 'as above so below'. In the context of our magazine it is meant to define a group that comes together from various ideologies and shares spiritual ideas, knowledge and experiences and is in a process of constant evolution.
