Full Moon in Aquarius 20th August 2021

Full Moon in Aquarius (22/8/21 at 10:01pm)

This month we have the second Aquarius Full Moon of the year. Aquarius, the element of Air, is the sign of the world server and we will use the world server to the best of our abilities. The first Aquarius Full Moon was last month and can be seen as the entrance point to this energy, and this second Aquarius Full Moon in August can be seen as the exit point to this energy.

There is the potential for this Full Moon to amplify change, activate our desire for greater freedom, or shine a spotlight on all that needs to be revolutionised in our lives. Aquarius energy is all about doing things differently and stepping away from our comfort zone in order to experiment with something new. It encourages innovation, growth, and looking at things from a new perspective.

With the Sun also wrapping up its journey in the sign of Leo at the time of this Full Moon, there is an added boost of creative and courageous energy on offer to us, which can be used to help any new visions take flight.

Aquarius also rules over technological advancements and policies that are put in place to protect the whole, rather than just the individual. While focusing on the community and the whole is great, when it swings too far out of balance, Aquarian energy can sometimes be too quick to bypass the emotional, compassionate side of humanity and instead, can look at things from a more technical and machine-like viewpoint. We may see more of these themes come to light, especially on a global level, under the second wave of this Aquarius Full Moon.

On a deeper level, this Full Moon is guiding us to connect to the energies of our past in order to use them as fuel for our future. We may have had to let go of so much over the last year. We may find ourselves standing in an empty field, wondering where our "old life" has disappeared to.

There is a beautiful frequency flowing in with this Full Moon that reminds us that no matter where we stand today, the power and love that we have cultivated in the past still exists.

While we may be looking at a totally different life, the energy of our past triumphs still remain, and we can use that power, that love, and that strength of our past and apply it to this new chapter that is waiting for us.

All is not lost. There is wisdom in the air. There is an energy dancing in the breeze of all who have traveled on this land before us and all who will travel on this land after us. We can connect with that energy; we can connect with that breeze and feel into the strength and wisdom that it offers.

Full Moon Workings

Moon Sign — Once again, our Moon sign will be in Aquarius, element of Air, Aquarius is the sign of the world server and we will use the world server to the best of our abilities. We will be using the same Watcher and details as last full moon. You can vary the meditation and the spell work if you wish. August is historically the month of the westerly winds (in NSW) so we will once again summon the winds (this time the westerly winds instead of southerly) to get our hopes and desires to the universal mind.

Watcher — This month we will again be working with Chazaqiel (Ézêqêêl) who was the 8th Watcher of the 20 leaders of the 200 fallen angels that are mentioned in an ancient work called The Book of Enoch. The name means "cloud of God", which is fitting since it was said that Chazaqiel taught humans the knowledge of the clouds and meteorology. Also translates as being the "Shooting star of God". This includes weather lore and divination.

Intent — We will be asking the winds to bring about change for the good of the planet, bring peace and harmony for the people and all sentient beings that cohabit this wonderful planet.

Meditation — To tap into the essence of Chazaqiel and the concepts of the winds of change.

Spell Work — Weather Magic is real and it begins with the Winds. Winds are the Air element, carrying messages and memories from other lifetimes. Our spellwork will involve the making of items such as simple paper fans, wind chimes, dream catchers, pin wheels, windmills or anything that catches or moves with wind.

Some suggestions for your spellwork...

(From <https://www.flyingthehedge.com/2020/11/elemental-magic-tools-of-air.html>)

Feather: Different feathers have different meanings depending on their color and source. For example, eagle feathers are associated with strength and courage, while owl feathers are associated with wisdom and silence. Black feathers are associated with spiritual action and self-exploration, blue for communication, red for passion, and gray for peace. No matter what the feather, there are some universal uses for them. Use feathers to fan your incense, flames, or spells to move the magic around. Incorporate feathers into communication spells or during astral flight to aid in crossing the hedge. Tie feathers into witches' ladders (a knot magic fetish), place in spells to help them on their way, or use in banishing or travel spells.

Kite: Kites have historically been used to carry messages to the gods. Simply write your messages on a ribbon and tie it to the tail of the kite. As you tie the knot state your intent. You can say something along the lines of "Knot that I tie, Kite that I fly, Please cast my wishes, Into the sky."

Pinwheel: While often viewed as a children's toy, pinwheels can be used to capture and harness the power of the wind. Simply write your intentions for the spell on the flaps of the pinwheel and either blow on it or take it outside to be blown by the wind. Store the pinwheel in a safe place. To release the energy or the spell, simply take the pinwheel apart.

Ribbon: Ribbons can easily be used in chord or knot magic, to tie or bind spells, or to write your intentions on and tie to an object to blow in the wind. Use color magic to help you pick the best ribbon for the job!

Whirlygig/Wind Spinner: Whirlygigs and wind spinners can be used in the same way as a pinwheel. However, most people don't want to take their whirlygigs and wind spinners apart to release the spell or energy, so instead infuse these objects with protective energies and allow the winds to continuously charge them. These objects are also great in protecting your home against damaging winds. Charge them with collecting the harshest of winds to prevent them from damaging your home. Be sure to shake the winds out away from your home after particularly bad storms to prevent them from being overloaded.

Wind Chime: Wind chimes can be used to clear energies around your home and can act as a proactive sound barrier against unwanted energies and entities. Many spirits dislike the constant sound of chiming bells and if the bells are made of iron, it will protect against many fae creatures that may wish to invoke mischief upon you. You can also write intentions on each of the bells and allow the wind to carry those intentions away with the sound of the bells.

Wings: Wings are associated with flight, but also take on the aspects of the creature from which they were taken. Use wings, especially insect wings, in spells that need to be carried away or in astral travel.

OR

Paper Hand Fan — You might prefer to make a simple concertina paper hand fan, perhaps writing your intent on the piece of paper first then focusing your ideas with every fold you make in the paper, then use the fan to send your magickal intent out into the winds.

Paper Aeroplane — fold a paper plane, add your written intentions, then launch the plane into the wind to send out the magick.

As you construct (or write on, decorate etc) your object, imbue it with your intent — speak out loud, creating your own chant as you do so. Repeat your chant as many times as you feel necessary to build the energy. Then release then energy by using your object to send your intent out into the Air. ie. flap the paper fan, swoosh the pinwheel so it spins, throw the paper plane, blow on or fan the wind chimes etc, whatever is appropriate for your chosen item and also whether you are indoors or outdoors when doing this ritual and spellwork.

An example chant:

*Winds, bring change for the good of all.
Winds, bring peace and harmony for all.*

Guided Meditation to Chazaqiel

Meditation to Chazaqiel \(Music Only\)

Sit quietly. Relax your shoulders, and let the tension flow out of you. Take a slow breath, hold it a moment, then let it gently out.

Feel where your feet touch the ground. Feel the ground firmly beneath you. Feel mother earth reaching up as you reach down to embrace her.

Feel the touch of the air about you. In your mind's eye, begin to see the space around as indistinct mist, dim, quiet. Still.

The mist starts clearing around you but there is not much to see. It starts getting lighter. The mist is less grey and more white, and getting ever whiter. You happen to glance up and see the sky is now visible - a deep blue sky. Not a cloud in sight. Except... The mist you were in has become a cloud you're standing on. And the blue sky extends as far as you can see.

There is a slight breeze. Just the occasional waft of air. Feel it caress your skin and tease your hair. The breeze gets a little stronger. It is still slight, but now it is constant. A cooling sensation on your skin.

A movement catches your eye and you turn to look at it. It is a feather. Watch the feather move its delightfully random flight through the breeze. Feel how the feather feels as it is tossed joyfully around in the wind.

The wind gets a bit strong. Now the feather is moving much more vigorously. For the first time you see the feather has two very different colours, one on each side.

Whilst you were looking at the feather, clouds have started appearing in the sky all around you. Most are being pushed by the wind. And the wind has become a steady force now, firmly blowing past you. It might be making you cold. The feather meanwhile is being pushed faster and faster and the clouds are, too. Some of the clouds are starting to get darker and now you see the blue sky has also just about disappeared.

The wind suddenly changes direction and now the feather is being blown up towards the darker and darker clouds. Up and around and up and around and into a vortex so fast that it is getting hard to follow.

You see the feather moving faster and faster - and then everything changes all at once: The wind is blowing harder than ever, the clouds are racing past above and around you, blue sky is visible between some of them and yet... and yet - the feather now stays perfectly still, hanging in the middle of the air.

We know Chazaqiel taught us weather. The stories say he taught us this. But did he teach us all he knew? And then ... Chazaqiel is here. Without a shadow of a doubt he is here and asking why you are, too!

Ask Chazaqiel to blow the winds of change across our world. To blow and move the world to heal from its ills. Ask this of Chazaqiel. We need help for the world, not just ourselves.

The feather flips and turns a moment. Chazaqiel reminds us that little things can have big effects. The right little things, as well as the right big things. Listen as he explains what you need to do, how to phrase your spell, how to ask the right thing of the universe.

The wind dies down and as it does so, the feather takes off once again. As it moves its unique path through the sky, the clouds start thinning out until they are almost all gone.

The feather takes a twist and turn and vanishes into one last cloud. The cloud envelopes you completely and the wind dies to nothing. Everything is still and quiet inside the white cloud. Still and quiet as the cloud slowly loses its brightness. Little by little it dims to grey and your awareness returns. You are back in your chair - move your fingers, toes, arms and legs gently to bring yourself back to your room.

And remember what Chazaqiel said to you.
